COMES NOW Plaintiff, pro se, and responds to the Court's own Order (doc. 269). The Court asked Plaintiff for a Supplemental Brief to show why he has standing with respect to a specific group of Airline Defendants. The Complaint was pretty thorough and did address many of the issues raised in this Order.

Plaintiff, Aaron Abadi, has sensory processing disorder. He cannot wear a mask or glasses, or anything on his head or face. When the airlines started requiring masks, they refused to allow Plaintiff to fly, and/or discriminated against him constantly. He was yelled at, denied access to fly, and even once left stranded in France. This lasted throughout the mask policies and mandates. He provided evidence of his disability, but these airlines did not care.

The inability to travel, caused severe financial injuries to Plaintiff, who is currently penniless and had to file this with the generous help of the Court, through an IFP Motion. Plaintiff had his entire income destroyed and ability to make income was taken from him.

The honorable Judge signed an Order filed on January 16, 2024, giving Plaintiff three weeks to respond, but then stating that the response is due February 3, 2024, which is less than three weeks. Plaintiff is content, however, that he was able to respond in time without needing to request an extension.

STANDING

The Court is requesting clarification from the Plaintiff regarding his standing, particularly in cases where tickets were not purchased for the specified airlines. Additionally, some of these airlines seemingly do not operate in the direction the Plaintiff claimed to require. The Plaintiff acknowledges the Court's inquiry into the possibility of him being a "tester," whom are typically associated with non-profits or human rights lawyers who seldom file pro se, although it is not impossible. It is crucial to emphasize that the Plaintiff is not a tester and genuinely needed to fly with at least some of the mentioned airlines. The extent of the injuries suffered would have been mitigated had five airlines, for instance, accommodated the Plaintiff's travel needs.

In the Complaint, Plaintiff explains that he needed to travel for work/business, and would have liked to travel for pleasure too.

In Paragraph 197 of the Complaint Plaintiff wrote with respect to Defendant Aeroflot: "This airline could have flown me to various countries where I could have completed my business transactions."

Yet, Plaintiff never suggested that he has business in Russia, as he does not. Yet, he alleged that Aeroflot, the Russian airline could have flown him to his business meetings.

Please allow me to explain. Most people think of an airline as a destination. If you take a Spanish airline, you must be going to Spain. That is not exactly how it works. A typical trip to India usually consists of multiple flights, and often more than one airline.

Please see my itineraries that I attached as an Exhibit to the Complaint (Exhibit 78 of the Complaint on Page 25). You will see a flight leaving from Philadelphia, PA, heading to Riyadh, in the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. You will see the following itinerary:

The first flight was over 7 hours on British Airways (flight # BA68) from Philadelphia to LHR (London) with a 4hr and 40 minute layover in London.

The next leg was from LHR to Abu Dhabi International Airport (AUH) in the United Arab Emirates. This flight was on Etihad Airlines (EY20). This flight was also over 7 hours. There was a 1 hour and 5 minute layover there.

Then the final leg of that particular trip was from Abu Dhabi to Riyadh. That was a two hour flight, also with Etihad Airlines.

If Plaintiff were to fly direct, it would have been much more expensive, and very limited flights. The norm for this Plaintiff and travelers in general going that far around the world, they stop over at least once and often twice or more. The return flight from that trip (Page 35 Complaint Exh 78) was from Bangalore, India. Now, while I was lucky enough to be on the one Lufthansa airline for the entire trip back home, but there were two stopovers on the way. I do not always get that lucky. Usually, I end up on more than one airline on any given trip to that region.

Interestingly, on the flights back from that region, it is almost the same travel time to cross the Atlantic Ocean by stopping in Europe, as it is to cross the Pacific by stopping in Asia. These trips seldom take less than an aggregate of 24 hours straight.

Plaintiff wrote in the Complaint in Paragraph 839, “Any one of these airlines could have gotten him to some of those destinations. For example, Aeroflot’s flight to Russia would get him to Moscow and from there he can get a flight to India. The airlines did not allow this Plaintiff to travel.” This was explained in the Complaint in several places.

Most of those long trips that Plaintiff has taken in the past have been with stopovers and usually with more than one airline. Often Plaintiff will stopover for a night and day, just to make the trip more bearable. Traveling straight 24 hours, is brutal.

This Plaintiff had to fly for business and wanted to fly for pleasure too. He listed in the Complaint some of the destinations that he wanted or needed to reach.

He writes in Paragraph 838 of the Complaint, “Plaintiff’s business prospects required him to fly to California, England, Switzerland, Israel, Florida, Texas, Chicago, India, Saudi Arabia, United Arab Emirates, and many other destinations.”

Plaintiff initially bought tickets during the period where there was the mask policy and/or mandate. He bought on British Airways, he bought on JetBlue, he bought on Delta, he bought on American, and likely bought a few more. Once he realized what he was facing, that airlines refused to follow the law, and refused to allow him to travel, he understood that his business could suffer significantly. He realized that he needs to figure out a way to travel, other than by rowboat.

At that point, he started calling airlines. He found a list of about seventy airlines on the Dept of Transportation's website. He started reaching out to the airlines that he was reasonably familiar with, like Lufthansa, Etihad, Emirates, and so on. All these airlines are from other countries, but one can easily fly to Germany on Lufthansa and then head to India or Saudi Arabia from there. When they all turned him down, he eventually reached out to every airline on the list. Almost all turned him down. Eventually, after first turning him down, Air France revisited the issue and allowed Plaintiff to fly with them, through Paris, to India. Unfortunately, finding available flights wasn't very easy, and many were cancelled randomly.

The other airlines were a problem. Plaintiff did not sue all the sixty-nine airlines. He only listed here as Defendants the ones that could have helped him reach any of his destinations. There are probably over twenty airlines that were deliberately omitted from this lawsuit, because Plaintiff did not think they could have helped him significantly.

The Court listed the following airlines, and asked for Plaintiff to explain how he would have standing to sue them. The question is, how could they have assisted you in getting to where you needed to go. The other question was, since you didn't buy a ticket, it looks like you really weren't needing to go, or at least, that is how I understood it.

I explained why I couldn't buy tickets on 70 airlines or 46 airlines, just in order to prove that I wanted to fly. I did buy several tickets, and I did eventually get to fly a few times on Air France, back and forth to India. I was successfully able to fly on Delta to Israel once. I had a hard time getting back though. I've done a lot of driving wherever possible. That was also brutal.

But to be sure, Plaintiff could not afford to buy multiple tickets at over $1,000 a piece just to see if they will let him fly. Anyone who has experience with the airlines can attest to the fact that if they do give you a refund, it doesn't come quickly. Besides, there was no need to buy the ticket, if I can quickly determine if they will allow me to fly, by sending them an email.

See the Complaint Paragraph 179, where Plaintiff quotes the following decision:

“...the ADA does not “require a person with a disability to engage in a futile gesture if such person has actual notice that a person or organization covered by [Title III of the ADA] does not intend to comply with its provisions.” Equal Rights Center v. Uber Technologies, Inc. (D.D.C. 2021) 525 F.Supp.3d 62, 76.

Now, while that is an ADA case law, the Courts usually treat Air Carrier Access Act (“ACAA”) cases in the same way as ADA without any clear legislation to the contrary.

There is no law or requirement for Plaintiff to buy a ticket in order to be protected by the ACAA disability laws.

With regards to the specific airlines and Plaintiff’s ability to get to any of his destinations with each of them, let us analyze that. Plaintiff will list each airline and show how that airline could have helped him get to some of his destinations:

Southwest Airlines Co. flies from the East Coast to an extensive list of destinations all over the United States (Exhibit A).

Silver Airways flies to less areas than Southwest, but Plaintiff was in Alabama several times during that period, and needed to get to Florida, and the Dominican Republic. Silver has routes in that region (Exhibit B).

Concesionaria Vuela Compania de Aviacion, S.A.P.I. de C.V. DBA

Volaris; while this airline does not go direct to any of my locations listed, but they do get there indirectly (Exhibit C). If they would have allowed me to fly, I would have driven to Washington DC, or even Chicago, and flown to San Francisco by stopping in Guadalajara, Mexico. It sounds like it is out of the way, but firstly, it can be done in about 9 hours. A typical stopover flight from DC to California is about 7 or 8 hours. And of course, at this point the expression that comes to mind is “beggars can’t be choosy.” Sure, I would love to have a simpler flight, but it was extremely urgent for the financing of my business plans, that I desperately needed to get to California. I could not get there. I did drive to California twice, but that was very difficult, and would take weeks. When I really needed to be there, I could not get there.

Royal Air Maroc, is an easy one. I have used them in the past on my way to and/or from India, Saudi, and U.A.E. I attached an itinerary from New York to United Arab Emirates (Exhibit D), but they have multiple options to get me to that region.

Aerovias de Mexico S.A. de C.V. DBA Aeromexico; this airline can be used like Volaris to get to California, but it also has many destinations in Europe (Exhibit E). Once I get to Europe, I can go to my meetings there, and then I can find a flight to India from there. Typically, when people fly from New York to India, they stop in Europe on the way anyway.

Transportes Aereos Portugueses, S.A., DBA TAP Air Portugal; This airline is a perfect stopover location for Europe, India, and the Middle East. I have used them in the past for traveling to Israel. They have an extensive list of destinations (Exhibit F).

Spirit Airlines, Inc., flies from the East Coast to an extensive list of destinations all over the United States and some international (Exhibit G).

Avianca S.A., has destinations in New York, Mexico, Colombia, and even Europe (Exhibit H). Plaintiff could have reached many of his desired destinations, if they would have allowed him to fly.

Singapore Airlines, this is a great airline that goes to India, and the Middle East from the United States. They have multiple destinations around the world (Exhibit I).

LATAM Airlines Group S.A., has flights to south America, but also goes to Madrid, Spain (Exhibit J). Plaintiff could get to certain locations in the US with Latam, but getting to Spain is ideal, as from there he can have options to get around Europe and over to the Middle East and India.

Iberia Lineas Aereas De Espana, S.A., Operadora, Sociedad Unipersonal; This airline is a perfect stopover location for Europe, India, and the Middle East. I have used them in the past. They go all over Europe and to Israel. They have an extensive list of destinations (Exhibit K).

LOT Polish Airlines, S.A. this is a great airline that goes to India, Europe, and the Middle East from the United States. They have multiple destinations around the world (Exhibit L).

From Plaintiff's Complaint and Exhibits, it is clear that Plaintiff needed to travel to multiple locations, both foreign and domestic. Once Plaintiff saw the problems that he was having with the first few airlines, and how the airlines conspired to ignore the ACAA laws, he stopped buying tickets, and would only purchase a ticket if the airline agreed to take him. That in no way means that he wasn't trying to fly with them. On the contrary, he spent hundreds of hours trying to get airlines to carry him.

All these airlines had flights that this Plaintiff could have benefitted from.
Had they allowed him to fly, he most certainly would have done so.

CONCLUSION

With respect to the Court, Plaintiff hopes that the above response in conjunction with the Complaint itself should sufficiently resolve any of the issues brought up by this Court with regards to standing.

Respectfully submitted this January 31, 2024.

EXHIBIT A

List of Southwest Airlines destinations

As of November 2023, Southwest Airlines has scheduled flights to over 100 destinations<sup>[1]</sup> in 42 states, Puerto Rico, Mexico, Central America and the Caribbean, the newest being Syracuse, New York on November 14, 2021. The airline has 15 focus cities and operates over 4,000 flights each day.<sup>[2]</sup>

Destinations

Southwest does not use the "hub and spoke" system of other major airlines, preferring instead the "point-to-point" system with focus cities.<sup>[3]</sup> It has large operations in certain airports. An average of 80 percent of Southwest passengers are local passengers—only 20 percent are connecting passengers, a lower percentage than on most major airlines, where many passengers connect in hub cities. However, at Southwest's focus cities, the percentage of connecting passengers can reach 30 percent.<sup>[4]</sup> As part of its effort to control costs, Southwest historically used secondary airports in cities where the primary airports have high costs, such as Chicago, Dallas/Fort Worth, Houston and Miami. In recent years however, the airline has been expanding into primary airports as well.<sup>[5]</sup>

In most cities where Southwest uses both a primary and secondary airport, the secondary airport is used more than the primary for flights (such as Oakland instead of San Francisco), with some exceptions such as the Los Angeles metro area, where Los Angeles International is a Southwest base and secondary airports (such as Burbank, Long Beach, Santa Ana and Ontario) have limited Southwest operations despite having a higher market share at the smaller airports. Until 2006, Southwest did not fly into Denver,<sup>[6]</sup> which is now its most popular destination.

Unlike most other U.S. airlines, Southwest does not fly outside North America, and it does not fly to Canada due to its payment system not being set up for Canadian dollars (however, Southwest does market Bellingham to cater to Canadian passengers in the Vancouver and Southern BC area as a low cost alternative to Vancouver International Airport).<sup>[7]</sup>

International service

Southwest began planning international service when it acquired AirTran Airways, which already served international destinations. Southwest's first approach to international service came on April 19, 2012, when it signed a contract with the Amadeus IT Group to launch an international reservation system. This agreement gave the airline the capability to begin flying to destinations outside of the United States.<sup>[8]</sup>

Southwest debuted the international reservation system on January 27, 2014, when its first international flights went on sale. This was followed by the first international flights which began on July 1, 2014, to Aruba (AUA), Montego Bay, Jamaica (MBJ) and Nassau, Bahamas (NAS).

Southwest built a 5-gate international terminal at William P. Hobby Airport that opened in 2015. Southwest also built a 5-gate international terminal in Fort Lauderdale that opened in 2017.<sup>[9]</sup> In 2021, a 5-gate extension of terminal A at Baltimore/Washington International Airport opened. Southwest is the sole occupant of Terminal A and it invested significantly in the creation of the extension.<sup>[10]</sup>

Busiest airports

As of January 03, 2024, there are 20 airports at which Southwest Airlines has over 80 daily departures.<sup>[11]</sup>

Reno–Tahoe International Airport is a public and military airport three miles (4.8 km) southeast of downtown Reno, in Washoe County, Nevada, United States. It is the state's second busiest commercial airport after Harry Reid International Airport in Las Vegas. The Nevada Air National Guard has the 152nd Airlift Wing southwest of the airport's main terminal. The airport is named after both the City of Reno, Nevada and Lake Tahoe. The airspace of Reno-Tahoe Airport is controlled by the Northern California TRACON and Oakland Air Route Traffic Control Center.

List of Singapore Airlines destinations

Singapore Airlines flies to 75 international destinations in 32 countries on five continents (as of June 2022) from its primary hub in Singapore. India is served by eight the highest number of destinations.<sup>[1]</sup>

After the Asian Financial Crisis in 1997, Singapore Airlines discontinued flying to Kagoshima, Berlin, Darwin, Cairns, Hangzhou and Sendai. Toronto was discontinued in 1994. During the SARS outbreak in 2003/04, Singapore Airlines discontinued flying to Brussels, Las Vegas, Chicago, Hiroshima, Kaohsiung, Mauritius, Vienna, Madrid, Seattle, Shenzhen and Surabaya.<sup>[2][3]</sup> In addition, Singapore Airlines discontinued flights to Vancouver (before the 2010 Winter Olympics) and Amritsar in 2009,<sup>[4]</sup> and São Paulo in 2016.<sup>[5]</sup>

Singapore Airlines presently operates the longest and second longest flights in the world, non-stop to New York JFK and Newark Liberty respectively, using the Airbus A350-900ULR. Singapore to Newark was the world's longest flight from 2004-2013, and 2018-2021, when they started JFK to Singapore.<sup>[6]</sup> Previously, it operated to Newark with the Airbus A340-500 aircraft until they were phased out in 2013.<sup>[2]</sup> Non-stop service to Los Angeles, also previously operated with the A340-500, also resumed in November 2018 with the new A350-900ULR.<sup>[8]</sup>

In October 2016, Singapore Airlines restarted its nonstop service from Singapore to the US with the launch of its new Singapore-San Francisco route.<sup>[9]</sup> The route flies A350-900 aircraft and includes Business, Premium Economy and Economy classes.<sup>[10]</sup>

The former Capital Express Route linking Singapore and Wellington via Canberra was replaced in May 2018 with Singapore-Sydney-Canberra-Singapore and Singapore-Melbourne-Wellington-Melbourne-Singapore routes.<sup>[11]</sup>

EXHIBIT I

In September 2020, the carrier announced that it will suspend services to Canberra, Dusseldorf, Stockholm and Wellington due to a drop in demand arising from the COVID-19 pandemic.<sup>[12][13][14]</sup>
